Lynn Glen

Lynn Glen is a steep wooded glen of the Caaf Water (a tributary of the River Garnock), just south of Dalry on the minor road from the A737 to Saltcoats. This beautiful glen is enhanced by native Birch, Hazel and Rowan, and the burn is the haunt of a number of birds including Wagtails, Dippers and the occasional Kingfisher.

At the head of the walk a bridge crosses to Pinnoch Point or "Peden's Pulpit" named after the famous Covenanting preacher who was said to have delivered sermons from this commanding rock. Returning along the north side of the glen, the walk passes the site of West Lynn, which was the home of Dalry born artist George Houston RSA (1868-1947).

The path is rough and steep in places, requiring care and good footwear. A circular 1km route is possible using a footbridge over the Caaf. Lynn Falls is a local beauty spot, particularly attractive in spring for its wild flowers.

Woodland species abound in spring including Chiffchaff, Blackcap, Garden Warbler, Spotted Flycatcher, Tawny Owl, Sparrowhawk and Buzzard.
